Did he hit you? Did he get under that thick skin that perhaps hasn't been touched by sarcasm and rough usage for years? Well, if he didn't, try it again, and if you aren't convinced that there is going to be something doing in Newark, you will indeed be happy in your loneliness. Dr. Lyon is certainly going to tear things loose here for the next six weeks and Newark's vice seems promised one of the worst scourgings that it has ever received. Swearing, Sabbath desecration, honoring of parents and murder were considered in the address at the big tabernacle last night for an hour and twenty minutes, and if the speaker's voice hadn't compelled him to stop, he probably would have been willing to give his audience and old fashioned verbal manhandling for another hour. "There was a whole lot I did not have time to say," remarked the revivalist after the sermon, "but I guess I've given them something to think about."

Voters who failed to vote against the liquor license proposition, those who despoiled young manhood and young womanhood by other vices than the liquor traffic—all these were condemned. And Dr. Lyon did not forget the church members who are professing Christianity, but who own buildings in which houses of ill-fame and saloons are being operated in open defiance of the law. Yes, it was a rousing evening and wholly prophetic of the days that are to come, when Dr. Lyon is going to reveal some of

MAN AND TEAM KILLED BY FAST FLYER AT CROSSING EAST OF ST. LOUISVILLE

Struck by the fast flying Baltimore & Ohio train No. 16, at Fowler's crossing, east of St. Louisville, at 6:30 Wednesday night, Leonard Andrew Worley, a teamster, whose home is in Utica, was instantly killed, his team killed and his wagon demolished.

Worley, who had been to Newark with a load of household goods, was making the return trip to his home when he met his death. Train No. 16, in charge of Conductor W. C. Smith, with Engineer C. C. Bobo in the cab, was rushing south and crashed into Worley's wagon on the Fowler crossing. The train was brought to a halt, and on investigation, Worley's body, together with the carcasses of the dead horses, was found under the wrecked wagon, in a jumbled heap of broken harness and splintered wood. The body of the dead man was placed on the train and brought to this city, where the ambulance of Criss Bros. & Jones met the train. The body was taken to the undertaking rooms and prepared for burial. An examination proved that it had not been mangled, but the chest was crushed.

The deceased, who lived in this city for a time, was born and reared in Utica. He was born Nov. 15, 1858. He is survived by a wife and one son, Carl, the latter making his home in Ashland. Four brothers, Douglas, Charles, James and William, live in this city. An adopted sister, Rose Camp, also lives in Newark.

The body of the deceased will be shipped to Utica, and the funeral services will be held at the home at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon.

name of his wife, or mother, or daughter, and hold it up in ridicule for men. There is no man in the world who would not say: 'That man is too low down for me to take by the hand.' Yet there are names higher than those of earth that men are dragging through the mire of blasphemy and filth. "Every profane man is a coward, and I can prove it. I challenge the wickedest, worst blasphemer in Newark to blaspheme the name of the Holy Ghost. He won't do it, for God says that there is one sin that is inexcusable, and that is it. "Some men say that they only swear when they get mad." The speaker declared, "That's it! You get your fingers pinched, or your figures won't add up right, so you swear about it, you cuss about it, you damn about it. When you sit down and milk a cow and the cow kicks over the bucket, you have to swear about it."

What if Wifey Cussed?
"Suppose your wife would go swearing and damning around the house. You would want to get a divorce at the next term of court. Men, you ought to be ashamed of yourselves!"
The speaker then declared that if some traitor would drag the Stars and Stripes into the gutter and tramp upon it and curse it, every patriotic man in America would wreak vengeance on that man. "But there is a higher banner, the blood-stained name of Christ, that men are dragging into the mire of blasphemy every day."

Your Dirty Carcass.
"If you must swear, just go out behind the barn, crawl under as far as you can, and then, when you get as far away as possible, you can cuss (Continued on Page 9, Col. 2.)"

Charleston, W. Va., Sept. 26.—Although surrounded in the mountains by soldiers under Lieut. A. C. Bell of Company I, First Infantry, the attacking party which last night fired on an outpost at Keefertown, W. Va., succeeded in breaking the lines and making good their escape.

Bloodhounds reached the scene of the skirmish today and finding a trail followed it far into the mountains. But reports from military headquarters gave no encouragement that a capture would be effected.

Governor Glasscock continued his efforts to bring about peace to the disturbed country today. It was stated that the attorneys for the mine

GOV. WILSON FAVORS THE INITIATIVE

Also Recall of Administrative Officers but Not of the Judiciary

NEW ENGLAND SPEECHES

Of Democratic Presidential Candidate Heard by Vast Throngs Many Being Turned Away.

New Haven, Sept. 26.—Governor

Woodrow Wilson admittedly went further yesterday toward defining his ideas on progressive principles than he has since he became the Democratic presidential nominee. In a speech that was received with enthusiasm at Hartford and another at New Haven last night, the governor explained that he favored the initiative and the referendum, as well as the recall of administrative officers, but that he was unqualifiedly opposed to the recall of the judiciary.

The Democratic nominee illustrated some of the points in his speech, which included comment on the direct primary system and the direct election of United States senators, by references to political conditions on the Pacific Coast. He said later that these references to California did not contemplate the presence in Hartford and New Haven yesterday of Governor Johnson of California.

"If I did not believe that to be progressive was to preserve the essentials of our institutions, I for one could not be progressive," said Governor Wilson in his Hartford speech.

After paying tribute to the character of the majority of the men in the United States senate, the governor said:

"It would be painful to repeat to you some of the processes by which seats have been bought in the United States senate, and you know the whole people of the United States know that a little group of senators holding the balance of power has again and again been able to defeat programs of reform upon which the whole country had set its heart."

The governor spoke of the effectiveness of the direct primary, especially in New Jersey, and turning again to the question of popular election of United States senators, said:

"It is true that we have had many shameful instances of practices which we can absolutely remove by the direct election of senators by the people themselves."

"Let's get another step deeper. I hope you won't any of you think that I am going too far in even mentioning in your presence these extreme doctrines of the initiative, the referendum and the recall. It is the last word that makes most men shrink. Let no man deceive himself by the fallacy that anybody proposes to substitute direct legislation by the people or a direct reference by the vote of the people, for representative government."

"The initiative is a means of recapturing the seat of legislative authority on behalf of the people themselves. The referendum is a means of seeing to it that unrepresentative measures are not put upon the statute books, but are checked by being submitted to the vote of the people. When you come to the recall the principle is that if an administrative officer, for we will begin with an administrative officer, is corrupt, or so unwise as to be doing things that are likely to lead to all sorts of mischief, in the future it will be possible by a sedate and slow process prescribed by the law to get rid of that officer before the end of his term."

"I don't see how any man who is grounded in the traditions of American affairs, particularly as they derive their origin from New England, can find any valid objection to the recall of administrative officers."

"It is another matter when it comes to the judiciary. I myself have never been in favor of the recall of judges. Not that some judges haven't deserved to be recalled—that isn't the point. But because that is treating the symptoms instead of the disease. The disease lies deeper and sometimes it is very, very virulent and very

OBITUARY

ELIZABETH M. HUPP

Elizabeth Meridith, daughter of Elder Samuel and Sarah Meridith was born Nov. 10, 1831. Died at the home of Samuel Hupp, Aug. 23, 1912. Aged 81 years, 9 months and 13 days. She was united in marriage to Strauther Hupp in 1848. He having died January 12, 1897. To them were born 12 children, six sons and 6 daughters, one son and two daughters having preceded her to the grave. She professed a hope in the Savior in early life, was baptized about the year 1851, uniting with the Primitive Baptist church called Friendship near Linnville, O., of which she was a worthy member at death. Passing out of the church militant into the church triumphant to forever praise her glorified Redeemer.

"In hope of life eternal given, Behold, a pardoned sinner dies, A chosen, blood-bought heir of heaven, Called to the mansion in the skies."

She trod the shades of gloomy death. Could get her seal that God was true: Finished her course, kept the faith, And died with glory full in view.

"Why should our eyes with sorrow flow, Our bosoms heave the painful sigh, When Jesus calls, the saint must go, To his eternal gain to die."

"Twas through the strength of Israel's King She proved a conqueror when she fell; 'Tis to the praise of grace we sing, Though of the dying saint we tell."

"Fearless she entered death's cold flood, In peace of conscience closed her eyes: Her only trust was Jesus blood, In sure and certain hope to rise."

She leaves to mourn her death five sons, four daughters, two brothers, fifty-nine grandchildren, and twenty six great-grandchildren, with a host of relatives and friends.

"Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord."

The funeral was conducted by Eld. T. Ruffner, assisted by Eld. E. Hutchinson, after which her remains were laid away in the Fairmount cemetery to await the resurrection morn.

HEREFORD CATTLE BREEDERS OF OHIO PLAN ORGANIZATION

Steps are being taken at the Bryn Du farm, near Granville, today for the organization of the Hereford Cattle Breeders of Ohio, pursuant to plans first formulated during the State Fair at Columbus, when J. S. Jones, owner of Bryn Du, and a number of other prominent Hereford breeders discussed the possibility of furthering their interests in the state.

The meeting of the stock men at the Jones farm today was very enthusiastic, and was attended by some of the biggest raisers of thoroughbred cattle in Ohio and adjoining states.

Mr. Jones entertained the visitors in his customary whole-hearted way, having a splendid luncheon prepared for them and every courtesy of Bryn Du extended. During the luncheon the prospects of a state-wide organization were discussed and the movement given the impetus necessary to carry it to successful operation.

Among the visitors present were Mr. F. C. Giltner of Eminence, Ky., president of the American Hereford Association; Mr. R. J. Kinzer of Kansas City, Mo.; Mr. Warren T. McCray of Kentland, Ind., one of the foremost

IF YOUR LIVER IS INACTIVE AND BOWELS WASTE-CLOGGED

Delicious "Syrup of Figs" removes the sour bile, foul gases and waste from the system without gripe or nausea—Regulates your 30 feet of bowels.

Primitive folks did not need laxatives. They lived outdoors, ate plenty of fruit, and all of their food was coarse. We modern people are different. We exercise too little, eat little fruit, and our food is too fine—too rich.

We simply can't have our ten yards of bowels clogged up, over choked with sour bile and stomach full of foul effete matter and feel well. It means that the food and waste retained in the stomach and thirty feet of bowels ferment—decay. The decay creates poisons, gases and acids, and those poisons are sucked into the blood through the very ducts intended to such in the nutriment. Then we have sick headache, become dull, bilious, tongue coated, nervous, meals don't digest, and we feel miserable all over. So we must make our choice.

"Hosier cattle men, and Prof. C. S. Plumb of Ohio State University, who outlined the course of action that should be followed in curing the condition, on a firm basis, George Morton, Aurora, Ill.; James Hill, president of the Hereford Association of Ohio; J. P. Fernow, Lehigh, secretary of the association; H. K. Crow, Cumberland, O.; George Fuller, one of the largest breeders of Canada, and John M. Cunningham of Cleveland.

Housekeeping Hints

If men did the ironing, one thing is certain, all irons would be electric. The manufacturer, the merchant and the office man, are all constantly on the lookout for labor-saving devices and you can't blame them.

Why shouldn't women be, too?

Life is too short to go on doing things in the old-fashioned way. With the ironing it is not so much a question of the cost of the iron and of current to keep it hot, but of getting an iron that will save labor.

If you figure in dollars and cents the time and effort saved you could afford a new electric iron every few months. Only one is necessary, however, and a good one will last you for many years.

BLIZZARD SWEEPING THROUGH COUNTRY AFTER SQUIRRELS

"Bye baby bunting, Elmer's gone a-bunting To get a little squirrel skin To wrap the little Blizzard in." Chief of Police Blizzard is enjoying a day's absence from police duties and is in the northern wilds of Licking county hunting squirrel.

Mayor Swartz had also planned to take the day off to hunt squirrel but upon arriving down town, and learning that a Blizzard was on the way, decided not to venture out.

Captain Charles Swank is on duty as acting chief.

It isn't every ball team that can win a pennant, but they can all display a certain amount of bunting.

W. B. HOPKINS

Who Recently Resigned as State Bank Examiner Accepts Position With Guarantee Company.

W. B. Hopkins, former Newark man, whose resignation as chief examiner of the state department of banks and banking was announced in Wednesday's Advocate, takes a similar position with the Equitable Casualty and Bank Depositors' Guarantee Company, a new organization, which has recently increased its capital stock from $200,000 to $250,000.

Mr. Hopkins' duties will be the same as when connected with the state department. It will be his business to make an examination of banks before his company will insure the depositors of the bank against loss in case of failure.

The main purpose of the company is to prevent failures by a rigid scrutiny of banks to which they lend protection. The examination will be such that the new company will back up the thoroughness of the inspection by guaranteeing to pay the depositors in full should the bank fail.

COLUMBUS RACES DRAW FROM NEWARK

RELATIVE OF NEWARK MAY HAS HORSE IN BIG HOSER COLUMBUS STAKE.

All Events Closely Contested and Big Crowd Enjoyed Afternoon BUI.

Newark visitors who took in the grand circuit races at Columbus yesterday were highly entertained with the program of races offered. Each event was closely contested. In some of the numbers, there were many entries. The fifteen pace had fifteen starters. In other events there were eight to ten horses answered the call.

The feature bill of the afternoon was the Hoster-Columbus stake for 2:14 trotters. A purse of $10,000 was hung up to be divided among the starters.

Eight horses started in this race and all took part in the four heats. Rapallo was distanced in the last heat.

Ruth McGregor, a chestnut mare, owned by J. J. Cooper of Cincinnati, was a prominent factor in this event. Mr. Cooper is a brother-in-law of W. J. Bowers of Newark, and is well known here. Mr. Bowers witnessed the races Wednesday. This plucky little mare took third money, finishing second in the first two heats and fifth and fourth respectively in the last two.

Dave Halley was the winner. After the first heat, in which he won sixth place, he took three straight heats and first money.

Bessie B., a bay mare, was first in the 2:15 pacing race with Carmi G. second. In the 2:10 trot, Cheeney, a bay mare, won in straight heats in the Capital City stakes, the best time recorded being 7:34. Berger, driven by Geers, was second.

In the 2:09 pace, Columbus Fire was first with Early Thacker second, the best time being 2:04 1/2.

Anna Axme won two heats in the Horse Review Futurity for three-year-old pacers. Impetuous Palmer was second. The best time was 2:08 1/2.

The summary of the Hoster-Columbus stake is as follows:

FIRST—Our association is not established for profit but for the mutual benefit of its members. Its earnings after actual expenses are paid are divided pro-rata among its members.

SECOND—We protect our members savings by only loaning money on real estate after the property has been inspected by three members of our board of directors and has been approved by the Board. As a further precaution after the property has been appraised at its actual valuation only two-thirds of the amount is loaned to take care of any possible shrinkage.

Former Congressman Dawes of Marietta, a staunch Republican, is one of many prominent men in his party who is publicly predicting the election of Congressman James M. Cox of Dayton, by a large majority. When asked by a Cincinnati Enquirer representative about the governorship election in Ohio while in New York recently, Mr. Dawes replied: "I would not be a bit surprised to see Congressman Cox win out about on even terms with Wilson in our state. I figure Mr. Cox's plurality at between 140,000 and 150,000. There is no question in my mind about the big vote that will be given Cox. Personally I like him very much."

Nobody is giving the Republican party credit for anything except the Trusts, and it is the support of the discredited Trusts that is turning such a large majority of the people against the G. O. P.

That constitutional amendments election is responsible for the coining of a multitude of counterfeit progressives. The third term party's multimillionaire gubernatorial candidate was fawning upon the royalty of Europe when the fate of the amendments hung in the balance, and now after the valiant work of Congressman Cox and other Democrats secured the reforms, he bravely and courageously goes upon the platform at the campaign opening in Akron and Cleveland, and endorses everything that the people voted for. Considering the fact that the candidate fearlessly entered the very territory that had given the largest majorities for the amendments he endorsed for the first time, it is more evident that Mr. Garford displayed remarkable fortitude last Saturday. He appears to be one of those dauntless, bold leaders, who linger in the rear while their soldiers fight, and when the battle is won and the enemy is in retreat, intrepidly mounts the ramparts and shouts
"Hurrah, we won!"

Congressmen Cox and Lever Newark High School Oct. 3

Hon. James M. Cox, Democratic candidate for Governor of Ohio, who will attend the Licking County Fair next Thursday afternoon, Oct. 3, will also address the people of Newark and vicinity at the High School Auditorium, Thursday evening at 8 o'clock.

Congressman Asbury F. Lever of South Carolina, who will speak in Ohio during the week of Oct. 3-9, will also address the people here Thursday night.

Congressmen Cox and Lever are splendid speakers.
Everybody is invited to attend the meeting at Newark High School Auditorium, Thursday night, Oct. 3 at 8 o'clock.

CORNER STONES OF BUSINESS AND INDUSTRY

The issue was clearly drawn on the trust question, which is one of the most perplexing problems to be solved, by Governor Woodrow Wilson, in that superb address which he delivered before magnificent audiences of militant Democrats, that packed the immense Memorial Hall in Columbus last Friday evening, and overflowed several thousands strong into the street outside.

Both wings of the Republican party stand for the regulation of monopoly, for both are in favor of a federal incorporation law, under which the national government would license corporations to become trusts.

The Democratic party stands for the obliteration of monopoly by the regulation of competition, and the freeing of conditions of business in this country so as to substitute the efficient for the merely powerful.

Republicans "propose to remedy these results produced by the trusts by the very means by which they were produced, namely, the partnership of the government in the management of big business."

In such a case, Governor Wilson pointed out, the contract between the government and the people, is too remote and indirect. "It is only a way in which to provide the people with new guardians, guardians interested above all things in making a profit out of their guardianship, a political profit, be it observed as well as an economic profit," said the governor.

The people then are to decide at the polls next November whether they prefer the plans of both wings of the Republican party to perpetuate monopoly by legalizing it and guiding it by a commission, to the Democratic purpose of destroying monopoly by regulating competition so that "every industry will be put on its metal and on the capacity of those conducting it, and not according to any artificial advantage, whatever.

Instead of a condition where control of the market is the basis of success, Democrats favor making brains and better business capacity the corner stones upon which to erect successful business and industrial institutions.

President Taft still feels sure of the support of the Mormon church, and if Apostle Reed Smoot can deliver those four Utah votes it will save the Taft column from being wholly blank.

Republicans and Third Term Party members propose by regulation of the government, to act through the trusts for the people. It is nothing new. For years under Republican administrations, the government has acted through J. P. Morgan, George W.
Perkins, E. H. Gary, et al., for the people, and the people always got the worst of it.

Taft is a mighty poor bluffer. When he says he will be re-elected it only passes for a joke. The real question is, how can he be saved from being third in the race.

itation in New Jersey the following laws have been placed on the statute books in that state:

A law providing for fire escapes and amending the factory laws of New Jersey to further protect the workers.
A law providing for sanitation in bakeshops and licensing the same.
A law to protect the safety and health of foundry workers.

A law increasing the number of factory inspectors for the better enforcement of other factory laws.
A law prohibiting the employment of children in mercantile establishments during school hours and prohibiting night work for children.

A law prohibiting the employment of young boys as telephone and telegraph messengers at night in large cities. The minimum age for night messengers in cities of the first-class is fixed at 21 years, in cities of the second-class at 18 years.

An employers' liability and compensation law.
A law regulating and licensing employment agencies.
A law eliminating contract labor in penal institutions.

A law providing for an eight-hour-day on state, county and municipal work.

This is only a partial record of the achievements of the Woodrow Wilson administration in New Jersey in the line of sociological progress alone.

In less than two years as Governor Woodrow Wilson accomplished ten-times more actual reform than Theodore Roosevelt put into effect during more than seven years as President.

Housework Drudgery!

Housework is drudgery for the weak woman. See brushes, dusters and scrubbers, or in on her feet all day attending to the many details of the household, her back aching, her temples throbbing, nerves quivering under the stress of pain, possibly dizzy feelings. Sometimes rest in bed is not refreshing, because the poor tired nerves do not permit of refreshing sleep. The real need of weak, nervous women is satisfied by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and as Mrs. Briggs and others testify:
It Makes Weak Women Strong and Sick Women Well.

This "Prescription" removes the cause of women's weaknesses, heals inflammation and ulceration, tranquillizes the nerves, encourages the appetite and induces restful sleep.

Dr. Pierce is perfectly willing to let every one know what his "Favorite Prescription" contains, a complete list of ingredients on the bottle-wrapper. Do not let any druggist persuade you that his unknown composition is "just as good"
in order that he may make a bigger profit.

Mrs. BRIGGS, of 329 N. Washington St., Delphos, Ohio, writes: "Having taken your 'Favorite Prescription,' for a bad case of intestinal disease and constipation with woman's ill, for which I was almost unable to do anything, I think I am safe in saying that there are no remedies in the world like Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and "Purifying Lotion Tablets." I am now enjoying the best of health, and thank Dr. Pierce for his wonderful medicines which have done me a world of good."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate liver and bowels.

Landmarks of Typewriter Progress

Such are all the recent developments of the

Remington

(Visible Models 10 and 11)

Among these developments are:
The Built-in Decimal Tabulator—which makes the decimal tabulating mechanism an integral part of the typewriter.
The Tabulator Set Key—which eliminates all hand setting of the tabulator stops.
The Column Selector—which determines, by the stroke of a single key, the exact point on each line where the writing is to begin.
The Adding and Subtracting Remington (Vahl Mechanism)—which combines in one typewriter, and in one operation, the functions of the writing machine and the adding machine.

Every one of these new developments is an evidence of the perpetual leadership of the Remington Typewriter. Illustrated booklet descriptive of all recent Remington improvements, sent on request.

tical painter, because it's made by a practical house.
It appeals to the builder, because it spreads farther and lasts longer.

After all, the labor is the largest element of cost in a painting job. To pay a cheap price is to save at the expense of the paint and the labor. AURORA is a pure lead and best scientific proportion of inert pigments. These are not to cheap-en, but to strengthen the quality.

A Most Exclusive Exhibition

THE advertisement read, "An exclusive exhibition of the very latest foreign fashions in hats, costumes, neckwear, and other articles of apparel. Admission by card only. Cards can be secured at the Main Desk."

When the women of the town read that, they sat up a bit straighter and said, "M-m-m, that sounds good. I think I'll go."

So straightaway they took sufficient care from the week's household allowance, and a little more in case any bargains were strayed upon, and set out in haste, fearful that many other women would be there before them, and they would not be able to see anything.

When the man at the Main Desk handed them the large, impressive-looking engraved cards of admission, the women felt very exclusive and smart and quite as if they were going to some very select function. They gave up these cards of admission at the door, and talked in subdued whispers, and looked at the dresses and handled the neckwear in a sort of superior, indifferent way, as if French dresses at two hundred dollars and hand-embroidered collars at ten dollars were everyday matters with them.

Then they went home and told their neighbors of the exquisite things they had seen, and implied there was no telling how many they had bought. And for several days they felt quite superior and far removed from the question of stew for dinner and getting Margaret a dress for a dollar.

But in the crowd was one woman of an inquiring mind. "Since the cards of admission are given to anybody who asks for them," quoth she to herself, "why all this pother about the exhibition's being so exclusive, and all this fine, roped-off air to it? Methinks I will watch operations a bit."

And so she stood by. And she saw that when the man at the door had collected quite a pack of admission cards, he took them to the man at the Main Desk, and with a wink handed them back to him. And the man at the desk, with solemn face, began distributing them over once more to the women who applied.

And this woman went away and marvelled that her sisters could be so childishly pleased with such a mere pretense, and that because such a fuss was made about these things, their value in the eyes of many was enhanced. And furthermore, she marvelled that the people were willing to pay the price for all this humbug. For in the end the people pay.

with crimson roses, dahlias and golden rod. There were no formal attendants, the bride being surrounded by six of her most intimate girl friends who acted as maids. There were three gowned in yellow and three in red. At the appointed hour Miss Blanch Richards played the wedding march and the party took their places before the officiating clergyman, Rev. Mr. Austin of the Methodist Episcopal church. Little Miss Evelyn Bacon of Macon, Ga., a cousin of the bride, acted as ring bearer.

Following the ceremony a wedding dinner was served, but the number was small, owing to the illness of the bride's father. The bride's table was arranged with red candles with red and yellow canopies and the favors were crimson roses. The place cards were handpainted in the chosen colors.

Mr. and Mrs. Moore left immediately after the ceremony for Newark where they will reside in Hudson avenue.

HIGH TREASON.

Oh, often, as I dance and sing and gambol up and down. I wish this country had a king, with sceptre, throne and crown. A monarch, when he takes his throne, is settled there for life: he lets the campaign graft alone, the whooping and the strife. The stately monarch ne'er appears on platforms here and there, the dust of travel in his ears, and cinders in his hair. He isn't called on to defend his course to unwashed dubs, antagonists he doesn't send to Ananias Clubs. He doesn't make the welkin throb, but in his throne room sits and learns the fine points of his job, while others throw the fits. Serene, remote, he does his stunt, attends his kingly grind; no noisy grand stand is in front, no bleachers are behind. He doesn't have to promise things he knows he cannot do; he plugs along like other kings, his pledges mighty few. He doesn't have to knuckle down to please this clique or that; he simply wears his derby crown and knows just where he's at. But we, who have a brand new chief elected each four years, are always plunged in noise and grief and rancor to our ears. When business gets to running straight, and quiet falls on men, we dig up some fool candidate, and rip things up again.

THE HUMAN PROCESSION

By O. Terrence.

DENNIS SHEEDY, WESTERN PIONEER, IS 66 TODAY.

When Dennis Sheedy first saw Denver, the Colorado capital was a mere collection of huts in the exact center of Nowhere; and when Denver first saw Dennis Sheedy, he was several degrees poorer than the proverbial church mouse. That was nearly half a century ago, and since then Denver has become quite some town, and Mr. Sheedy has accumulated nobody knows just how many millions and a son-in-law, I. Townsend Burden, Jr., by name, who recently got into public prints by declaring that America is no place for a gentleman to live because it is so full of common people. Don't you know, Mr. Sheedy, however, entertains no such notions, and even boasts of his humble origin, which must be galling to the esthetic soul of Son-in-law Burden. It is to be noted, however, that Mr. Burden, son of an old New York family and a really clever polo player, did not refuse the $1,500,000 dowry that came from Papa Sheedy when he married the beautiful Florence Sheedy.

You would never guess it, of course, but Dennis Sheedy was born in Ireland, just sixty-six years ago today. "My father was good Irish," says Mr. Sheedy, "and wore cowhide boots to help raise the mortgage from his farm." The elder Sheedys emigrated to Massachusetts when Dennis was a brood of a b'y, and he was only twelve when his parents removed to Iowa, where he was given a common school education. Dennis was seventeen, but big for his age, when he crossed the plains to Denver, walking most of the distance. He arrived in Colorado with the clothes on his back and only a dollar or two in ready cash. Soon he tramped on to Montana, working for a time as a miner until he had accumulated enough capital to start a small grocery store. After seven months of selling provisions to the inhabitants of a little mining camp, he trekked to Utah, where he worked at various odd jobs. With his savings he bought a course in a commercial law in a Chicago school, and then set out again for the West as the leader of a train of prairie schooners filled with immigrants bound for Utah. He led his charges safely over the Overland route, then beset by hostile, scalp-hunting Indians. His next venture was as a freighter in Utah, Montana, Idaho and Nevada.

In 1869 Mr. Sheedy entered the cattle business, which was the real foundation of his immense fortune. He became one of the cattle kings of the West, with scores of ranches and camps scattered from Kansas and Nebraska to Nevada. When the free range became restricted he sold out his cattle business, and settled in Denver, where he became interested in banks, smelting concerns and other corporations. He has patented nearly a score of inventions, mostly improvements in smelting.

Mr. Sheedy's first wife was Katherine V. Ryan of Leavenworth, Kan., who died in 1895. Three years later he married Mary Teresa Burke of Chicago. Mr. Sheedy's daughters are famed for their beauty, and the marriage of Florence Sheedy to I. T. Burden Jr. was one of the big social events of last year. Horse shoes and railroad spikes were the foundation of the fortune inherited by young Burden, who was recently quoted as saying:

"There is no use hiding or trying to deny the fact that people of fashion have no proper place in which to live in America."

However, he "took the cuss off" this statement somewhat by adding: "I do not mean to reflect on the common people, for they are necessary to the economic development of the world."

La, la, but wasn't that kind and condescending' of I. Townsend, bless his 'tule heart.

Mr. Marion Hitt spent Sunday with Mr. Lewis Edwards.

Mr. Ralph Brown called on Mr. Bryan Woolard Tuesday.

Mrs. Margery Edwards called on Mrs. C. A. Wintermute Saturday.

Mr. Jones at Church.

"Mary, did you see Mr. Jones in church Sunday?"

"Yes, Grace, and I hardly recognized him, as I thought he was bald or nearly so."

"What has he done?"

"Well, Mary, Mr. Jones told me that he has been using Mrs. Mason's Old English Shampoo Cream and he is so pleased he can't talk about anything else."

"If people would only take care of their hair, keep the scalp free from dirt, dandruff and itching scales, with this English Tonic, Herb Shampoo, an abundance of healthy hair would be the result."

"I know a lot of people who are using Mrs. Mason's Old English Shampoo Cream. They are all so enthusiastic over it, Frank D. Hall—our local druggist sells it; 25c a tube, enough for three or four shampoos. They will return your money if you don't like it."

WHAT THE GROCER SAID.

"This is a nice business," said the grocer to a Newark reporter. "I sell to the very best people in Newark, and by the way, best I mean the folks who want good things and who pay for them—folks who know how to get the best goods at the price of poorer ones. Take Easy Task soap as an example. It is increasing in demand every day. The reason is that it does half the work itself, and the women know that. Yes, Easy Task not only works by itself, but it sells itself."

Everybody is going to the Licking County Fair and Aeroplane flights at Newark next week.

ATTEMPTED TO VICTIMIZE A LOCAL BANK

Another local chapter developed today in the story of the arrest of Edward Bible at Mt. Vernon Monday of this week, charged with attempting to pass a forged check for $135.

It became known that a young man offered a check at the First National Bank last week, but was refused payment in the order because he could secure no one in Newark to endorse the check with him.

Norton Suter, teller at the First National, was offered the check. The name of the payee and the indorsement on the back were not noted in particular.

It was written on a check from a pocket check book and was numbered up in the three thousands, an unusual number at least for a pocket check book.

It was signed "The South Penn Oil and Gas Company," but had no counter-signature of president, secretary or treasurer. It was otherwise crude in its construction, and Mr. Suter told the young man he would have to get some local business man to indorse the check with him. He returned later with a man who claimed to know him, but this was not satisfactory to the bank teller and he was refused the money. He stated that he would be back later.

Mr. Suter states that he made no note of the names on the check, but remembered the points stated above. He states that the age given by Bible at Mt. Vernon corresponds with the apparent age of his recent caller.

As far as is known, Bible failed to victimize anybody in Newark with his worthless checks.

Everybody is going to the Licking County Fair and Aeroplane flights at Newark next week.

AMUSEMENTS

Freckles Tonight.

An attraction which caused more than the usual desire to see a play, is Neil Twomey's dramatization of Gene Stratton-Porter's widely read story, "Freckles," which will be the attraction at the Auditorium tonight. When it is considered that this fascinating story of Indiana's great swamp country, the Limberlost, has had more than a million readers, there is no wonder that the drama is causing far more than the ordinary attention. Where a book contains the vital requisites for dramatization, the play is always of more interest than the story. Because the imagination is not taxed and human nature, all of which are bound closely in the plot, which reaches its climax through a series of situations and events that hold the closest attention of the audience.

The crowd which greeted the dramatic version of Gene Stratton-Porter's novel at the Sixth street theatre Tuesday night was not as large as the show merited. The drama was the best that has been seen here this season and John Roberts in the role of Freckles was all that could be desired.

Mendoza, in the role of Angel was pleasing, especially in those parts of the play where she aroused the ambitions of Freckles by her heart to heart talks with him.

As was said before, Mr. Roberts, in his part of Freckles, was good and easily carried the honors of the entire show with him. His simple, Irish manner was captivating and his play and grit brought forth admiration from the audience. In the singing of the two interpolated songs, "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes," and "The Girl That I Love is Kind," Mr. Roberts also scored a decided hit. Another member of the cast that played his part in a finished manner was Alpheus Lincoln, as Black Jack, the timber thief. His role required good acting, and this was supplied in an able manner by Mr. Lincoln.

FIRST THINGS

The first meeting of the Washington National Monument Society, organized for the purpose of erecting a national memorial of the first president in the capital city, was held in the city hall at Washington 79 years ago today. John Marshall, the famous chief justice of the United States, was the first president of the society. On his death ex-President James Madison became his successor. Since then the president of the United States has been ex-officio president of the society, which is still in existence. The foundation of the monument was laid in 1848 and by 1859 the society had collected sufficient funds to carry the shaft to a height of 156 feet. During the civil war and reconstruction the project lagged, but in 1876 congress provided for the completion of the memorial, and in 1884 the capstone was set in position on the highest monument in the world. The total cost was $1,500,000. The total height above the ground is 555 feet.

FRUIT WAGON WAS STRUCK BY ELECTRIC CAR

A wagon belonging to E. J. Ponsart, commission merchant, was hit by an east bound Ohio Electric local Thursday morning between First and Front streets, in East Main, and was badly damaged.

The wagon was driven by a boy who pulled the rig onto the track directly in the way of an approaching car. The horse and the front of the wagon was across the track when the collision occurred. The rear wheels of the wagon were demolished. The horse and driver were uninjured. The headlight of the car was damaged.

A barrel of sweet potatoes and a bushel basket of peaches were scattered about the street.

Former Well Known Newark Men Largely Interested in Realty at State Capital.

The Ohio State Journal Thursday morning contained the following relating to a change in real estate firms, Messrs. Crayton, Chilcote and Hibbert being former well known Newark residents:

John A. Chilcote, Edward Hibbert, King S. Thompson and Ben S. Thompson have sold their interests in the Dominion Land Company to Edward W. Crayton and Charles F. Crayton & Johnson. This is one of the largest firms in this part of the country in its line of platting allotments. It was organized two years ago last July and has operated in Columbus, Cincinnati, Norwood and Lima. The first big local addition that was placed on the market was the Indian Springs Addition on North High street. It has since brought out the East Cleft and Windermere Additions on the Scioto River. Glen View Heights and Ardmore on East Broad street, besides a number of lots and premises. By the present transaction, entire control of the ownership of the company goes into the hands of Messrs. Crayton and Johnson, who will continue the business. Mr. Crayton is still interested individually in the Glen Echo Addition, Walhalla, Walhalla Park, Walhalla Terrace, Walhalla No. 2 and of the properties formerly platted and owned by the Columbus Real Estate and Improvement Company, the Ohio Cities Realty Company and the Empire Realty Company. Mr. Johnson will retain his interest in the Thompson, Johnson, Thompson Company, which firm has platted Chittenden Place, Dennison Summit, Waldeck Avenue Addition, Glenmont, Brevoort Place, Kenworth, Webster Park, and Oakland Park, on North High street. Broad Oak Parcels and Eldon Heights Addition.

TABERNACLE

and damn and curse and swear to your heart's content, but if you have a little bit of respect left in that dirty carcass of yours, I pray that you will not utter another oath where men may hear it."

The speaker declared his intention to consider other commandments, and chose, "Remember the Sabbath day, to keep it holy," for his second analysis. "Lots of people make it 'wholly'—wholly for their own pleasure," he said. "They use it for their dissipation and their amusements. Our holy day has degenerated into a holiday."

He called attention to the fact that the commandment is divided into two distinct parts, the first concerned with labor, the second with work. "The lazy man sins against God every day," he said. "An English girl was boasting over an American girl and said that in England they had a class of people who never worked, and said that they were the aristocracy."

"That's nothing," the American girl replied. "We have them, too, but we call them tramps."

Society Women Gasp.

"If you women, while your husbands are working hard for you, will go gadding about the streets, playing bridge and gambling, and carrying on your social vices and matinees, you are a disgrace to that husband and are sinning against God. God try the wife with a lazy husband, but may He also pity the husband with a lazy wife," the evangelist pleaded.

"The Lord knew what He was about when he gave one day in seven for rest," Dr. Lyon continued. "A man needs it to recuperate his strength. It's like a train at the end of a division, where the engines were being changed one day. A traveler asked the engineer why he didn't use the same engine all the way across the continent, and was told that an 'engine needed rest just the same as a man.' And if a piece of machinery to keep from wearing out must have a rest, how much more does this marvelous machinery of the human body need it."

"There can be no enduring civilization without morality, and below this first story in the building of civilization is the Christian religion, and the cornerstone of this is the Sabbath. The only thing that stands between this country and industrial slavery is the gospel of Jesus Christ, and when a workman uses the Sabbath for recreation, that man is driving a nail in the coffin of his national liberty."

Likes the National Game.

"I like baseball. It is clean American sport. Uphold it whenever you can! But when anybody tries to debase the Lord's day by using that day for baseball, they are not only destroying the Sabbath, but they are driving a dagger in the back of the cleanest game in the United States. Shame on that governor of Ohio who didn't have backbone enough to uphold the veto of the bill on Sunday baseball."

"We ought to have a half day for fun: God wants us to have fun. The devil doesn't want us to have any enjoyment, poor devil! I don't want to have enacted the old Blue Laws of New England, where a man couldn't kiss his wife on Sunday, but I do want to stop the playing of baseball on Sunday."

In these days when we call everything we want to ridicule 'puritanical,' we would think that the Puritans were a lot of cutthroats and thieves sent over here to override civilization," said Dr. Lyon. "Every thing we have in America tonight, that's worth anything came over in the Mayflower and the kindred ships. When any man wants to ridicule and curse the principles that they have handed down to us, that man is a traitor to the best things in our civilization. We owe a great debt of gratitude to the postmaster general for issuing that proclamation closing the offices of the country so that the tired, overworked carriers could have one day's rest in seven. The railroads are giving their men one day's rest in seven some places and are closing their excursions on those days."

Bloated Bondholders Scourged.

"I have no sympathy or respect for the man who will go out in his automobile on Sunday, run all over the golf links, and for the sake of grasping greed compel his fellow man to work seven days in the week. He has to repent, or if there is a hell for anybody, he's going to get it."

Dr. Lyon then told the story of a church elder who got the days of the week mixed and thought that the Sabbath was Saturday. He went to the village store in his old clothes and tried to purchase some goods. When told of his mistake he was greatly distressed. His friends tried to excuse him and offered his forgetfulness as a plea. "That's all right, friends," wailed the old man. "I did forget, but God told me to remember."

The Evil of Habits.

Probably the most startling portion of the sermon was Dr. Lyon's discussion of the commandment, "Thou shalt not kill." "There are more ways to kill," he said, "than with the dirk and gun. There are many ways of committing murder, and many people are committing physical suicide in their daily life. 'Know ye not that the body is the temple of the Holy Ghost? If any man defile this body, him shall God destroy.'"

"Suppose you owned a nice new house and your tenant took and daubed mud all over the white walls. He wouldn't stay in there long, would he, and he probably wouldn't get in again. God is testing you by your physical bodies. If you deface it, do you think God will give you that mansion in the heavenly skies?"

Dr. Lyon emphasized his creed against cigarette smoking and repeated the statement made before the High School yesterday morning when he said that he would "rather see his son dead than grow up and be a cigarette fiend." "Fathers, what kind of an example are you setting your boy? Have you a patent right on filth? If your wives were guilty of the dirty habits you are, you'd leave her and get a divorce just as quickly as you could."

"Friends," shouted the speaker, "either the level of manhood will be raised to that of womanhood, or the level of womanhood is going to be degraded by our men. Wouldn't it be better for you to sacrifice some of the habits that are dangerous and keep your son strong and pure and sane?"

The Yellow Back Novel.

"Many young men of the country are committing intellectual suicide," maintains the speaker. "Pernicious reading is doing much to overthrow our young manhood. Yellow-backed books about 'Tiger Tim, the Terror of Timbuctoo,' or 'Nimble Fingering Dick' go hand in hand with cigarettes and their dirty yellow finger stains," he declared.

Have you any place in Newark that selling that intellectual trash? I would rather have a small post house on the main street of a town than that kind of a place. How many a son or daughter has some little pamphlet hidden away in a trunk or drawer that they don't want their parents to see?"

"The time is so short from the cradle to the grave, we see so little of this life, that we have no time to waste in pernicious reading."

"And don't forget the moral suicide," cautioned Dr. Lyon. "A man is known by his companions. If I know what kind of companions a man keeps, I may not know what he has been, or what he is today, but I do know what he's going to be tomorrow. Water finds its level somewhere."

Bats in His Belfry.

"You never knew a fellow who wore his hat on the side of his head that hasn't a screw loose somewhere, who hasn't a yellow streak in his make-up, and when you see a fellow like that telling some dirty story, squirting tobacco juice through his teeth, or smoking a cigarette, you may know there is a young fellow giving him a preparatory course to be a post graduate of the reform school or the penitentiary."

"And when you see a young girl going out stilet with a fellow like that, you may know that she isn't shoe-high! I saw one the other day and the fellow was puffing cigarette smoke into the girl's face and she seemed to enjoy it. Let me tell you, the girl that permits such a thing as that hasn't a bit of self-respect. I'd like to be a girl and have a fellow do anything like that. I'd knock both the dude and his cigarette into the gutter. If we had better back-bone among our girls, we would have a different kind of young men."

The next point in the discourse was the possibility of spiritual suicide. "People today are literally starving themselves to death," said the speaker. "How can you expect to keep strong when you eat only one meal every four or five days? Why are our churches filled with weaklings? Why do we have so many people that don't do any real work, people that don't give any testimony for Christ? They are dying at the top. They are slowly starving to death."

Dust Off the Bible.

Dr. Lyon provoked great laughter when he intimated that "some people could be awfully pious when the preacher was around." He told the story of the preacher who asked the blessing when at a home where such things were uncommon, and the small boy of the family—the eternal small boy—looked amazed and finally said: "Aw, cut it out! What are you giving us?" "There are a lot of people who, as soon as they know the pastor is going to call, get the Bible off of the shelf and wipe off the dust. The cover is so dusty you could write your name on it."

"People today rush to their meals like hogs, without giving thanks for the blessings of the day. They lie down to sleep without any request for protection through the coming day. And when the recording angel enters it in his book, he will write down: 'Died of spiritual starvation'—don't call it suicide."

"It's more honorable for you to stab your mother in the back than to kill her inch by inch by your harsh deeds. I've had my hand calloused by hard toil, but that hand's too clean to grasp the hand of a man who is destroying the life and the heart blood of that dear mother of his."

Whoremongers and Boozers.

"How many a husband is killing his wife inch by inch by his unfaithfulness! Four out of five men down on the public square are cursing this revival and the pastors and the Christian workers, but it's because they are whoremongers and drunkards. Am I talking plain Anglo-Saxon to you? Do you understand what I'm saying?"

In words of fiery denunciation, Dr. Lyon then rebuked scathingly the drunkards of the city, and told of several instances where death and murder had been the outcome of debauchery. "And then, when the wife of the drunkard is dead, he goes back from the grave and tries to drown his sorrows in drink, and the man with the white arnon and the black heart, the man behind the bar who ought to be behind the bars, is still plying the drug and the death-dealing drink."

"Ain't I licensed to sell it," is the refuge of the saloon keeper," according to the speaker. "Am I my brother's keeper? Doesn't the law give me the right?" And there you have the modern Cain!

The Terrors of Drink.

One evening in a licensed dram shop, Dr. Lyon related, a young man was shot down by his companion. The murder was arrested and there was great excitement and threats of lynching. "Friends, I would like to have one thing. I would have liked to have grouped around the coffin of the young man who shot him, the bartender who sold the liquor, the saloon-keeper who ran the place and the church member who owned the building, and then I would have had every one of the voters who cast their ballots to permit that man to sell that liquor that inflamed that young man's brain, that caused him to shoot down that friend, and then I would have liked to have had the power of a Nathan and have pointed to every one of those licensed voters and said to them, with all the power that I had: 'Every one of you stands condemned of the murder of that man.'"

Dr. Lyon also told the story of an Ohio man, "a devil when drunk, but kind-hearted when sober," who, in a fit of drunken frenzy, butchered his own child because its mother would not give him money for "more booze."

Isn't It Awful?

"That's what liquor does! That's what the majority of voters in Newark have allowed to be legalized right here in your city, and you know that damning, black, slimy trail has brought a curse to this city, because church members didn't have the conscience and the courage and the conviction and the manhood to stand out for sobriety against the damning curse of the liquor business."

So dramatic was this scourging, it was several moments before Dr. Lyon had the physical power to continue his sermon. The audience never been applauded, although denunciations, equally as sure in their direction have often been uttered. The message was a powerful one and as the pastors on the platform heard the outburst of enthusiasm, more than one of them bowed in appreciation of the truth that the church people of Newark are being inspired to action as never before.

A Hot Hell A-Coming!

"Before God," Dr. Lyon finally continued, "every voter in this city that has voted for license and for the prosperity, the protection and the perpetuating of the rule of the liquor traffic is participants criminis in all the trail of crime and the murders of the past, and either you have to get down on your knees and break your connection with hell and go out for God, or if there is going to be a hell that is not for anybody, it is going to be hot for you."

The society evil—the evil of a childless age—was denounced by Dr. Lyon in no uncertain terms. "It is nothing but infant murder. You hear about the children that are found outside the cities in China and India partially devoured by wild beasts. You call it heathenism. But you have a cultured heathenism right here in America, and it is found on the boulevards as well as in the slums."

Society Murders Its Children.

"Why are there so many childless homes these days. There are, of course, some homes where good people might feel grieving that their arms might be torn from their own child, but there are other homes where the lack is due to the incarnate, satanic selfishness that does not want anything to interfere with their social plans."

Dr. Lyon then told of an organization in an Ohio town where twenty-four women, called the "Un-encumbered Club," did not believe in having any "squalling brats about."

"And every one of that gang fought the revival meetings from beginning to end."

"Whenever you find a woman who has time for bridge and other gambling and vice, and has no time for children, you can find that nine times out of ten, if the family doctor will tell you the truth, there is a woman that is guilty of infant murder."

The Poodle and Tomcat.

"It is not easy for me to talk to you about things like this, but some one has to talk plainly on these questions that are paralyzing the life of our nation. They called Roosevelt old-fashioned when he said that when the birds sing notes of a mother cease, the death knell of America will be sounded. But God pity that home in which there are brats and children—a tomcat and a poodle dog!"

The final commandment treated by Dr. Lyon was that one which has been instilled in the mind of every Christian or non-Christian since the earliest days of ethical advancement—either by precept, the birch rod or Christian influence, "Honor thy father and thy mother." "The young folks of today are laying the old folks back on he shelf," said Dr. Lyon. "And in Sing Sing prison, 80 per cent of the inmates traced their imprisonment to disobedience of their parents. Whatsoever ye sow, that shall ye also reap."

Write Home Tonight.

"Are you taking good care of the old folks? Are you making their pathway bright? Make their lives all sunshine. There is some son or daughter here tonight, far away from this aged mother; don't neglect to write that letter. How much it means to get a letter from the boy or girl, even if it isn't very long. How long has it been since you have written to mother? Nothing will give you greater satisfaction when you are aged and your parents are in the grave than to think that you did what you could to make life bright for them, and nothing will give any blacker or deeper remorse than the realization that you did something to bring sorrow and care to the life of that one who loves you better than the ruddy drop that gushes about their hearts."

His closing remarks Dr. Lyon addressed to the parents in the audience. "What have you done, folks? Have you forfeited the right to the respect of your children? Let me ask you, fathers and mothers, have you anything in your private lives that would cause the loss of the respect and the love of your children to be destroyed?"

"And don't forget that a young person that's honoring his earthly parent is not far from honoring his heavenly parent."

A Hot Time Tonight.

Dr. Lyon declared that tonight's sermon would be devoted to the discussion or graft, business dishonesty, gossiping, scandal, and the great social evil, adultery.

"If you are a deadbeat or sensitive in any way, you can stay home. We're going to have a hot time in the old town and you're liable to get burned."

Outdoor Service a Success.

Three hundred persons heard the brief talk by Judge Holloway on the south steps of the court house shortly after 6:30 o'clock last night, and the greater part of these found their way to the tabernacle at the close of the meeting. The music, directed by Prof. Mitchell, received a hearty reception from the outdoor audience and proved a valuable attraction. Another outdoor service is to be held at the same place on Saturday evening at 6:30 o'clock, with special musical offerings by Prof. Mitchell and Mrs. Grace Powell, the Lyon soloist.

At 5:30 o'clock tonight, a men's meeting will be held at the Heisey glass factories, when Judge Holloway will deliver a 20-minute talk to the workers of the night shift. Interest in the special meetings is growing and the Jewett Car Company has given permission for the holding of a noon-service at their plant on Friday noon. "The interest in the neighborhood prayer meetings is increasing and is inspiring," repeated Dr. Holloway. "The revival will commence until you have an individual burden of individual prayer." Arrangements have been made for the holding of a union prayer service at the East Main St. United Brethren church, the North End Christian Union, the First Congregational, the Woodside Presbyterian, the Pine Street Christian Union and the South Side chapel.

Musical Features Splendid.

One of the greatest factors in the success of a revival is its music, and surely the Lyon party is not deficient in this respect. Under the direction of Prof. Mitchell, the chorus choir of over 200 voices is developing its ability rapidly, and the songs of praise from the tabernacle have demanded the attention of residents several blocks away. As soloists, Prof. Mitchell and Mrs. Grace Powell are artists not to be compared with the usual evangelistic singers. They possess voices trained to the point of finesse, an appreciation of musical interpretation and a sympathy with their work that cannot fail to lead to a reception of their gospel by their audiences. Mrs. Powell's offering last evening was "My Mother's Prayer," and Prof. Mitchell, at the court house service, sang "Where is My Wandering Boy Tonight?"

Ushers Are Busy.

The staff of ushers at the tabernacle has been splendidly organized and is taking care of the crowds in a splendid manner. The children are permitted to have the three front rows clear across the building, and persons hard of hearing are seated in the four rows of the center section immediately behind the youngsters. A place has been reserved for physicians on the left side of the building, and calls for physicians are to be carried to that section and not called from the pulpit.

The mayor and chief of police are lending their support to the meetings in their official capacities. Some trouble has been experienced during the early meetings by small boys running around the building, tampering with the doors and windows and shouting at the speaker. There was none of this last night, for the three formed police officers were at the tabernacle throughout the service as a special courtesy of the department.

Bunch of Cheap Skates.

Dr. Lyon opened his service last night with a reference to his previous sermons, at which some good Newark citizens had taken umbrage and declared their intention to remain away from the meetings.

"What do they want me to do—pat them on the head and tell them they're all right, only to do a little better hereafter? I'm here for business, and I'm going to talk plain," he replied, in answer to their criticism.

The collection from Tuesday night's audience was the smallest ever received in an audience of 3000 persons, said Dr. Lyon. Only one person put a dollar bill in the pans, four put half-dollars, 30 put quarters, 139 put dimes, 415 put nickels, and 207 pennies were contributed. In all, 800 coins were deposited—and 2200 people did not have anything to give to the Lord! Dr. Lyon pleaded for larger collections—declaring that he was not getting any—pointing out, in fact, he was under an expense of $12 to $15 daily out of his own pocket for the maintenance of the party. "It's just as one saloon keeper said," he remarked, "until the people of Newark—the church people—put more than two cents apiece in the collection box, the saloon keepers and their friends aren't going to come to the meetings."

The neighborhood meetings will be held in churches Friday morning at 9 o'clock, instead of in homes. There will be six of these meetings in various parts of the city. The churches and the leaders are as follows:

East Main Street, U. B. church, Rev. Chas. Laughlin, leader.

North Newark Christian Union Church, Rev. J. M. Thomas, leader.

First Congregational Church, W. D. Ward, leader.

Woodside Presbyterian church, Rev. Calvin Hazlett, leader.

Pine St. Christian Union church, Rev. F. E. Holloway, leader.

South Side Chapel, cor. Pataskala and So. Third St. Mrs. Frances C. Allison, leader.

ed to the words that promised an eternal reward for her life of service. Her very presence seemed to add new meaning to the afternoon meeting.

Dr. Lyon discussed the opening chapters of Nehemiah, in which the prophet undertook the rebuilding of the city of Jerusalem, and in the work of the great revivalist of ancient times, Dr. Lyon found a message that should prove of great benefit to the local workers. He discussed the makers of excuses, such as Nehemiah had to contend with, those who persistently criticized and those who were void of any desire to encourage the good work, and found apt parallels for comparison in the daily walks of this age.

The Devil's Trick.

"It is amusing how the devil can pick and find excuses if we don't want to do a thing," Dr. Lyon said. "Another way the devil has of getting hold of us is by having us make a lot of engagements. I'd rather have one hour with a man who is busy, though, than a month with one of those lazy, shiftless fellows. There are always plenty of avenues for the man who is willing to do things."

There are lots of people," Dr. Lyon claims, "who sneer at missions. Let them have their religion and let us have ours," is the belief. "Whenever I hear a man say that, he doesn't believe in missions, he either a backslider or has never known God. God had but one son, and he sent Him to be a foreign missionary."

All excuses were swept aside by the great prophet. "He was determined," continued the preacher, "to keep up the great work in Jerusalem. He spent his days in fasting and praying. Friends, there's too much dry-eyed praying in this country. If we had better prayers we would have better preachers. Moreover, you can't fool God with crocodile tears."

The second chapter of the book tells of Nehemiah's work, which commenced with his brief survey of the city. "I and a few men with me," the holy report reads.

"Friends," commented the revivalist, "if this country is to be saved for Christ, it will be done by the not by many. If you and I had the spirit of earnestness, of patience, of persistence, that Nehemiah had, if we would come with weeping and praying, we would win out over all the world. There is no need of glooming things over. Why is it that only about one man in every ten ever puts his foot inside a church, Protestant or Catholic? Why is it that sin is increasing five times as fast as the population of the world? Why is it that church members are engaged in their money-making, their pleasures, instead of following in the footsteps of Christ?"

Salvation of the Home.

The speaker touched a chord that met with prompt and evidenced sympathy when he said: "Salvation, like charity, ought to begin at home. Lots of people will insist on mending the faults of their neighbors when they ought to be mending their own. Christian people, why don't you speak to your family about Christ? Why don't you have that longing to bring your own child to Christ, and let no one take from you the glory of the conversion of that son or that daughter. I cannot give you anything better than that for your own good. Is it so hard for you to talk to your children about Christ? If so, there is something wrong with your own spiritual life. If you can't go to your next door neighbor and talk about Jesus, there is something wrong with you."

Dr. Lyon then brought out the various types of people with whom Nehemiah had to deal, as shown by the fourth chapter of the annals. "Sanballat was wrath and took great indignation," quoted the speaker. "I like to get people mad by saying things to them sometimes. Anything but a dull time. Let me tell you, any sort of a person or church that could sit down in the midst of the liquor business and the other vices that you have in Newark is an opponent and not an exponent of Jesus Christ. It's like crawling through a sand bank to influence those people; it's hard to make an impression."

"Tobias was another type. He prophesied that the work would not last. He gave his kind here in Newark. They say that the work of the revival won't be lasting. I'd rather fight a man like Tobias than fight Indians. There are lots of them skulking around here, criticizing and doing all in their power to break down the walls that are erected."

The "Can't-do-it" Type.

"And then there is the man who is always discouraged, like Judah (Nehemiah 4:10). The burden of a pastor is the fellow who always says 'we can't.'"

But the work of Nehemiah was successful because "the people had a mind to work," declared the speaker. "And if there is any harder work than soul winning, I want to know what it is. If we are to be successful, we must 'have a mind to work.' And then comes the praying. Not the talking, but real, earnest praying, and then, more than all, give yourself with your gift. If we are to have a revival, it is because you and I will work as we have never worked before."

"If you people walk around the aisles in the aftermeetings," added the preacher, "and shake hands coldly, just offering the tips of your fingers, as many people do, you are going to do more harm than good."

"The building up of the work of God is constructive and destructive at the same time. Too much of our so-called religion of today is sword work, and they have forgotten to use the trowel. Our reformation usually is more evident than our regeneration."

In closing, Dr. Lyon advised his hearers not to heed the call of the devil's forces when popularity is offered in an effort to restrain from personal work. "Don't mistake popularity with influence. That's the way the devil gets hold of a lot of preachers. Lot in Sodom was more popular than Abraham out of Sodom, but Abraham was more influential. Nehemiah was tempted to leave his work, to accept the fruits of popularity from the opposing hosts, but he replied: 'No, God has given me a great work. I cannot come down!'

Brownsville, Ind.—"I can say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done me more good than anything else. One doctor said I must be operated upon for a serious female trouble and that nothing could help me but an operation."

"I had hemorrhages and at times could not get any medicine to stop them. I got into such a weak condition that I would have died if I had not got relief soon."

"Several women who had taken your Compound, told me to try it and I did and found it to be the right medicine to build up the system and overcome female troubles."

"I am now in great deal better health than I ever expected to be, so I think I ought to thank you for it."

FOR PURPOSE OF EXTENDING NORTON AVENUE

Petition Filed Asking That a Jury Assess Compensation—News of the Licking Courts.

Attorneys Jones & Jones, for the city of Newark, have filed in probate court an application to assess compensation, making Bert M. Hall of Columbus the defendant in the matter.

The petition states that the council has, by resolution, declared its intention to appropriate lot No. 74 in Hudson Park Addition, to public use for street purposes in order to extend Norton Avenue from the Baltimore & Ohio right of way west to Hudson Avenue.

The city asks that the court cause a jury to be impaneled to make inquiry into and assess the compensation to be paid, and that upon payment to the owner or deposit of the amount assessed, the possession of the property be awarded.

Justice Jones' Court.

The matter of Ohio vs. A. B. Cain was heard in the court of Justice D. M. Jones yesterday. Cain was charged by Humane Officer J. P. Harris with having overladen and beaten a horse. The defendant pleaded not guilty and was bound over to probate court under a bond of $100, which was furnished.

Divorce Petitions.

Alleging that her husband is an habitual drunkard, that he is cross and ill-natured, and that he refuses to support his family, Maude Moore, by her attorneys, Smythe & Smythe, sued for alimony from William M. Moore, whom she married in 1894. She avers that he uses coarse and indecent language and that in 1909 he published in the Newark papers notices to all the world to refuse her credit.

The petition recites that a separation exists between the parties in the case.

Mrs. Moore asks temporary alimony during the pendency of the matter, and permanent alimony on final hearing.

Charles A. Stricklin, by his attorney, J. V. Hilliard, has filed a petition in probate court asking that he be divorced from Lottie M. Stricklin on the grounds of extreme cruelty and gross neglect. He alleges that she says that she cares nothing for him, that she will not permit him to see their child and that she refuses to live with anyone other than her grandfather and grandmother.

The affiant states that his wife will not keep house for him and that she will leave home for a day and a night at a time, going away in a cab and telling him that it is none of his business.

The plaintiff prays divorce and the custody of their child.

PARKER WOMAN FILES MOTION FOR NEW TRIAL

In the matter of Ohio vs. Nora Parker, the defendant, by her attorney, L. C. Russell, has filed a motion for a new trial on the following grounds: That the verdict of the jury was not sustained by sufficient evidence; that the verdict was against the weight of evidence; that the verdict was contrary to law; that the court erred in admitting incompetent immaterial and irrelevant evidence offered by the state, and in excluding competent, material and relevant evidence offered by the defendant; that the court erred in the charge to the jury; that the verdict should have been not guilty, and other errors apparent upon the record.

On Tuesday last the Parker woman was found guilty of causing and contributing to the delinquency of Ruby Hassler, a girl of 16 years.

The present motion will be passed upon Saturday.
